The officers visited the home of John Martin of Weaver, where 120 bottles of jamacia ginger was found; twelve barrels of wine was found in the home of Tony Cadstone of Ellsworth, and a search of the home of John Evans of Bentleyville received a barrel of mash, two gallons of moonshine and a 12-gallon still. Everything, with the exception of the wine, was confiscated, and the owners taken before George Beck, Justice of the Peace, of Bentleyville. The men were held under $1,000 bail for the next term of court.

MAN HELD FOR MURDER IS QUIZZED

Chief of Police William A. Haines of Monessen and three patrolmen were in Monongahela yesterday and visited the Monongahela jail and questioned John Posa, 21 years of age, who was arrested by Acting Chief of Police G. T. Gillingham and Patrolman Charles Young at Monongahela on a charge of abduction and other serious charges preferred by the parents of Betty Stoppa, aged 15 years of Jenners, Pa., and also in connection with the murder of Pasquale Serrano about one year ago in Monessen.

Chief of Police Haines of Monessen questioned Posa for more than an hour in connection with the murder of Serrano. The latter was killed by three Italians and after being brutally beaten was shot and instantly killed. The police worked on the case for several months and finally arrested Posa, whom it is said was an enemy of Serrano. Posa was held in the Monessen jail for some time but as no evidence could be brought against him, he was released. Later the police discovered additional evidence which directly in-

Taxes Descend Upon The Just And The Unjust

Under the caption "Tax Dodging In Charleroi," the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin editorially comments thusly:

"Tax dodging is a crime. And among the penalties of that strict equality which suffragists consistently demand in the political status of the sexes happens to be the privilege of paying taxes as and when they are levied. 'Washington county tax collectors report that women generally refuse to pay school taxes throughout the county, so the Board of Education has instructed Collector Brady, of Charleroi, to proceed against 2,000 delinquents, of whom 200 are men, and 1,700 women.'

"Every tax collector knows there is sometimes a disposition among elderly maiden ladies, living on incomes, they do not earn, to balk at supporting schools which they have no children to use and which are accused in agricultural sections of spending more than they should on subjects not popularly identified with the three R's."

"But it would be ungentle to hint that Charleroi's women taxpayers can possibly muster any preponderance of spinsters. And the needs of the public schools everywhere are too well understood for well-informed women to be backward about paying school taxes according to their means."

"Unless there is something more behind their recalcitrance than the usual reluctance to part with tax money until necessary, the Charleroi ladies will doubtless presently recoup the school funds and retrieve their credit by settling with Collector Brady without legal process."

AN M. E. SOCIETY GIVES PROGRAM LAST NIGHT

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal church held their regular monthly meeting in the church rooms last night with about 48 members present. The meeting was one of the best attended and instructive meetings that has been held for some time and was called to order by the president, Mrs. Lindsay. A short business meeting was held during which Mrs. Lindsay presided. The pastor, Rev. Dr. E. H. Greenlee, was called upon for a few remarks and after a short address, closed with prayer. The hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. Belle Crispin, Mrs. Ray Chester, Mrs. E. Hewitt, Mrs. D. Mitchell and Mrs. E. H. Greenlee. SMALLPOX SCARE AT DONORA OVER

Yesterday several of the guards who have been on duty in the borough of Donora since the outbreak of smallpox three weeks ago, were released. These guards were stationed at the houses in the Sycamore alley section of the town, where a large number of colored residents who had come in contact with those suffering from the malady, were being held in quarantine.

The majority of the inmates of the two houses in that section were released from quarantine after their clothing and personal effects had been disinfected. No new cases have been reported for several days, and it is opined that the threatened serious outbreak had been averted by the timely action of the state board of health, county medical authorities and the Donora physicians.

Only One Case Remains On the List of Common Pleas Court at Washington —
Pittsburgh Railways Company

Case On Trial, Elizabeth Smith, Sylvester Ruffing, And William Herron, Partners, Trading As Smith Coal Company, vs. Pittsburgh Railways Co.

Only one case remains on the list for the present term of common pleas court, all others having been either settled or continued, and late yesterday afternoon the jurors were excused. Yesterday morning two cases were left for trial. That of the Smith Coal company against the receivers of the Pittsburgh Railways company, was called yesterday morning before Judge James I. Brownson, but the afternoon was devoted to hearing arguments for a continuance of the case of S. R. Talvert against the receivers of the Pittsburgh Railways company.

Counsel for the defense wanted the case continued because of the absence of material witnesses. This was opposed by counsel for the defense, and most of the afternoon was spent in showing that the defendant company had been unable to locate the missing witnesses. The court finally granted the continuance. The case of the Smith Coal company will be taken up again this morning. The case on trial is that of Elizabeth Smith, Sylvester Ruffing and William Herron, partners, trading as the Smith Coal Company, of Monongahela, against the receivers of the Pittsburgh Railways company. It was called before Judge Brownson.

This is a suit to recover damages for a truck belonging to the plaintiff company which was struck by an electric car of the defendant corporation and practically demolished. The plaintiffs are in the retail coal business in Monongahela. The accident occurred on August 29, 1923, on Main street, Monongahela.

It appears that the truck was being backed into a narrow alley where a load of coal was to be delivered. In order to get into this alley it was necessary to get the truck exactly in front. According to the plaintiff an attempt was made to back in, but it was necessary to run out into the street again and get a fresh start. An electric car was standing on the switch at Seventh street about a square away. The plaintiff avers that after the truck started to back into the alley the second time, the electric car was started, and before the truck could get out of the way, the car struck the front of it. It seems that the truck was driven against the Herron house on the corner of the alley and badly wrecked.

CLUB IS TO HOLD BIG EVENT JULY 16

The Golf Entertainment committee of the Monongahela Valley Country Club has announced another very interesting event to be held at the club course, beginning Monday, June 16, and ending Saturday, June 28. This will be a 36-hole handicap, in which all the golfing members are invited to take part in, and which will provide some interesting contests. The prizes will be three cups, which will be awarded for the best scores. All players will receive handicaps according to their ability and will give every member an opportunity to land one of the coveted prizes. The 18-hole Challenge contest will begin on Friday next, June 6, which will also be a handicap contest, the prize being a beautiful silver cup, which will be a perpetual challenge trophy for the members. The cup will remain at the Club house, but all winners will have the privilege of having their names engraved thereon. Beginning Saturday, June 7, the first of a series of 18-hole handicap matches will take place. Eight prizes have been offered by the committee, and with handicaps to be arranged by the professional, every player will have a chance to win.

The first dinner match of the season will take place on Friday, June 13. This contest is expected to bring together all of the golfers of the Club, and a close contest is expected.

The entertainment committee is arranging for other events during the season, announcement of which will be made from time to time. If weather conditions only prove agreeable the season will be the best in the history of the Club.

"HOODMAN BLIND"

AT THE MAJESTIC

In every city and among all classes, in villages and countryside, the subject of divorce has come to be one under common discussion. Some argue on behalf of the law which gives unhappy mortals their freedom, while others take the position that "what God hath joined together, let no man put asunder." But nearly all agree that the most general cause of the divorce evil, if evil it be, is due to misunderstanding. Accordingly, basing their theme on misunderstanding, Henry Arthur Jones and Wilson Barrett wrote a stage play which now has been produced for the screen by William Fox. The scenes are placed in America, though the theme is universal, even among the savage tribes of south-most Africa. Everybody misunderstands, whether he wears the proper garb for afternoon at the reception, or is satisfied with a strip of canvas salvaged from some wrecked schooner off the coast.

"Hoodman Blind" is the story of a faithful wife who was misunderstood, while villainy finds a way to place her in the wrong light before her husband. He leaves her and allows himself to slip down into the slime of greed. But understanding comes like a great, white light and they are reunited.

John Ford directed the picture, which comes to the Majestic theater on two days, Friday and Saturday. A cast of well known screen players portrays the various characters of the story with remarkable realism and exceptional feeling.

JUPITER PLUVIUS IS BUSY; NO GAME AT BROOKLYN YESTERDAY

After cultivating the acquaintance of Jupiter Pluvius somewhat extensively this spring, the Pirates were not greatly surprised when the old god of damp weather dropped in at Brooklyn yesterday and prevented them from playing the first game of their scheduled early series on the same slope of the National League circuit. He worked the same gag on the Giants and Cubs.

Bill McKechnie and his birds blew into the big city yesterday morning after their successful barnstorming venture in Williamsport, and half an hour later Pitchers Coomer, Meadow, Morrison and Kremer, together with Coach Schmidt and four scribes, arrived direct from Pittsburgh.

Scarcely had the entire party registered at the Somerset and finished their breakfast when a drizzle set in. The shower soon passed over and the sun went to bat. During the noon hour the Buccaneers motored by way to Brooklyn and were not long in donning their baseball duds. By the time the gates were opened, ugly clouds began creeping up from the restless Atlantic. After the athletes had indulged in a work-out of about an hour, the sky became so dark that it was difficult to see the ball and both Managers McKechnie and Robinson ordered their men off the field.

CHARLEROI TO PLAY WEST NEWTON HERE FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Flushed with their victories this spring, and especially chesty over their beating of the Harnmarville Consumers last night, the West Newton club will come here tomorrow afternoon with another victory, as they see it, already won. The time of the contest is 5 p. m., slow time.

Manager Mathers will have a strong team on the field, with Beatty pitching. Shortstop Krosnoff returned from college yesterday and will be seen in the inner works.

The attendance will doubtless be large, inasmuch as half of the town of West Newton will be here; and it is practically certain the fans of Charleroi and vicinity will turn out.

AFFAIR WITH A WOMAN COMPLICATES

Harrisburg, Pa., June 5.—An affair with a woman younger than Mrs. Manbeck, believed to have been murdered, complicated the case authorities made against Dr. Cornelius Dailey today.

Dr. Dailey, middle aged, and of striking appearance and personality was still confined to the local hospital recovering from an injury which the district attorney contended was self-inflicted after he had shot and killed Mrs. Manbeck in his office Sunday morning.

Dr. Dailey lingered under care of one of the best physicians in the state debating his lot, pretty Mrs. Pauline Derr, 26, and a mother, came to his defense with a startling story of how a mysterious woman emerged from the darkness Saturday night as she and her mother were about to accompany the doctor on a motor ride.

After addressing the physician the woman, according to the story told authorities, parted with the statement, "all right, Dr. Dailey, I'll get you in your office tomorrow morning."

The authorities went deeper into this story and found that Mrs. Derr was quite familiar with Dr. Dailey for some time prior to the tragedy.

John M. Derr, the husband, was located. He accused Dr. Dailey of coming between himself and his wife. He added he had left her on this account.

"How often was Dr. Dailey at your home?" he was asked.

"Almost every day," he replied. He then told of having been at his wife's home Saturday evening to see his six-year-old son. "She was there at the time," he said.

Despite these conflicting accounts the authorities were inclined to attach importance to the pretty young mother, whose attachment for Dr. Dailey was evident, they said, in her answers to their questions.

A motive for the crime, which before had seemed obscure, was more pronounced.

Mrs. Dailey, the doctor's wife, had been eliminated when it was found she was visiting in Philadelphia with her relatives. A separation has been in effect for some time, it was learned.

City Detective Hyde Speece said today the state has completed a case against the physician and they were prepared to make the arrest as soon as Dailey can leave the hospital.

"There is a big obstacle before us," he declared. "Some of the best counsel in the state has been engaged but we have a net around him that he can't escape."

CONSUMERS LOSE

TO WEST NEWTON AT WEST NEWTON

West Newton, Westmoreland county champions, defeated Harnmarville Consumers, National Baseball recreation champions last night 4-3. The game was forfeited with one out in the ninth and the visitors at bat, when the Consumers protested an umpire's decision. The Miners claimed that Howard failed to hold Schulties' line drive to left, but the arbitrator ruled otherwise, and when the Consumers left the field he awarded the game to the locals.

The Consumers held the lead until West Newton started a rally in the fifth that brought three runs. Martin and High each gave eight hits.

Stars We Cannot See

Two hundred millions of millions of miles away is a star called Algol. It is the second brightest star in the constellation of Perseus, and it has the curious habit of varying in brightness at regular intervals.

After much research we know now that Algol consists of two stars—one bright, the other dark. They are each about a million miles in diameter and about two million miles apart. They revolve around one another, and when the dark star is between us and the bright one, the light we receive from the latter diminishes.

There are several other stars of the Algol type, and it is simply through our researches that we are aware that there exist in the heaven dark stars—stars which give no light at all and are in themselves totally invisible.

How many there may be we do not know, for it is only by their power of eclipsing bright stars that we can recognize them at all.

Gorgeous Visiting Cards

Mrs. Burton Kingsland, author of "Etiquette for All Occasions," says that "in the early days, when everybody's visiting cards strove to be individual, the resulting products must have looked not unlike the old-fashioned valentines dear to our childhood. We read of creations made out of paper or cardboard finished with a sheen to imitate silk, enamel or what not—perhaps bordered with lace paper that framed a hand-painted landscape. The owner's name—though the raison d'être of the card—was really the least of it, but might be discovered in a graceful scroll evolving from the beak of a little bird singing in a tree top."

According to Mrs. Kingsland, even so late as the 1840s, young men of fashion affected a card highly decorated with the name in such microscopic characters as to be almost illegible, which had succeeded the custom of engraving a facsimile of the owner's signature.—Detroit News.

Banking-by-mail in a strong, efficient, helpful institution such as this is an outgrowth of this development. Through the quick, far reaching Postal Service we serve many people living miles outside Charleroi, as well as many right in town.

TEST TO FIND SUSCEPTIBILITY TO SCARLET FEVER
Dr. Abraham Zingher, Asst. Director of the New York City Dept. of Health, is here seen demonstrating on his own 4-year-old son, James, the newly discovered "Dial" test for susceptibility to scarlet fever. The red spot which appears in 24 hours after the test is made, indicates that the patient is susceptible to the disease.

Scientist Says Frozen Air Makes Blue Sky

The blue color of the atmosphere is caused by a stratum of frozen, crystalline nitrogen in extremely high altitudes, according to theories recently put forward by Dr. L. Vegard of Paris. The aurora borealis and zodiacal light are attributed by him to the same cause.

Doctor Vegard asserts there is some point in the upper atmosphere where the temperature must fall as low as 350 degrees below zero Fahrenheit. If so, nitrogen, the main constituent of air, must freeze, even as snow is formed in an ordinary wintry atmosphere. The resulting nitrogen frost is likely to remain in a dispersed state, Doctor Vegard also assumes that it is electrically charged.

Inasmuch as the atmosphere is shallower near the poles than at the equator, the air-frost would approach the earth more closely in polar latitudes. More light disturbances would therefore occur in such regions.

The presence of nitrogen at such great altitudes as must be necessary to get temperatures as low as 350 degrees below zero is accounted for by Doctor Vegard by the repellent effect of the electrical charges which these particles are assumed by him to carry. Doctor Vegard suggests that this outer shell of nitrogen frost-cloud may act also as an envelope for the atmosphere and prevent it from diffusing into space.

Scientists Unable to Agree on Origin of Oil

The question of the origin of petroleum is very complex. In many cases we have reason to believe that the petroleum was not derived from strata in which we find it. The bulk of the oil of a field may have been produced under fairly uniform conditions; but each minor occurrence may also have passed through its own history of production and development under special local conditions. As regards parent material or materials, we have only suppositions.

The oils—as distinct from petroleum—we commonly deal with are all of organic origin, vegetable or animal. Petroleum may have the same origin, and of late the view has been gaining ground that the occurrences of petroleum and coal are interrelated. But the advocates of an animal origin of petroleum have by no means given in, the possibility of an inorganic origin also continues to find support, and the great variety of petroleum suggests various parent materials and modes of production. At present there is no agreement, not even on essential points.—From Engineering.

To Get Rid of a Bore

One of the amusing and original characters in Paris is M. Sacha Guitry, who made his fame as actor and playwright, and who has increased it by the oddities of his temperament. He is a witty, versatile and quick-minded man and is naturally inclined to be impatient with bores. Recently there was one who plagued him with unnecessary calls. One day he burst in on Guitry, who greeted him warmly, though that morning the appearance of the man put him more "on edge" than ever.

"Just in time," said Guitry. "I want you to see a new conjuring trick I have thought out," and he grabbed the unsuspecting visitor's hat and exclaimed, "Watch!"

Then Guitry poured a jugful of water into the hat. The owner of it got up in alarm.

"There now," exclaimed Guitry petulantly, "you've made me forget my trick!"

The "trick," however, is reported to have worked admirably. The same visitor has not troubled M. Guitry since.—From Sketch.

Defining Poetry

Here is Stephane Mallarme's reply to a query made by Vogue in 1898 as to the definition of poetry:

"Poetry is the expression in the language of mankind, brought back to its essential rhythm, of the mysterious meaning of the aspects of existence; it gives authenticity to our sojourn on earth and constitutes its sole spiritual task."

Jean Moreas replied to the inquiry with twelve interrogation marks. Pastre excused himself, Joseph Caragiale wrote that "poetry is the art of saying banalities in an eccentric way," and an unknown writer called poetry "the attempt to express the indefinable."—From Le Figaro, Paris.

Taking a Chance

"Want to take a chance?" asked a producing manager of Yorick Hamm, the eminent comedian. "I can use you in a show, but I can't pay salaries until we see whether the show is a winner."

"How's a fella gonna live meanwhile?"

"That's the chance I'm offering. In Act II we eat a meal on the stage. It's a bedroom farce with sixteen beds. That solves your rooming problem! All you gotta dig up is breakfast, and if you sleep all day you won't need any."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Couldn't Use It

"My beau is in the candy business," simpered Samuella. "He brings me oodles of bonbons."

"Mine is a florist," chirped Johnette. "He simply overwhelms me with the finest posies."

Haroldine was silent.

"What line is your young man in, dearie?" asked the others in chorus. "Tar roofing."

Huge Reservoir Built to Store Flood Waters

The erratic flow of the streams of the intermountain desert country of the West makes extremely difficult the problem of engineering in that region. These streams are characterized by extraordinary fluctuations in discharge, varying from zero to enormous floods, and changes occur at irregular intervals. Owing to such fluctuations the constructing engineers who are building large storage works are forced to plan types of structures that are not common in regions where streams are more dependable.

Out in Nevada the government has built a remarkable dam, known as the Lahontan, in Carson river, to store the floods for irrigation. Carson river is subject to sudden floods, which are occasionally repeated at short intervals. The storage reservoir does not contain the entire flood discharge, so that provision must be made to take care of the surplus.

Enormous spillways are constructed at each end of the dam, which converge toward the middle of the river, where a circular stilling pool of concrete has been built.

In the center is a concrete amphitheater, into which the floods are turned and stifled. The wide steps of the spillways serve to check the downrush of the floods as they are turned out of the reservoir to drop back into the river 100 feet below. The velocity of the water is reduced to 10 feet per second, or the flow of a big river.

Mine in Sweden Has Been Worked for Over 700 Years

The oldest company in the world is that which owns the Falun Mine in Sweden. It has been working for 700 years without a break and has produced more than 100 million tons of iron pyrites. The mine is a huge hole in the ground, nearly a quarter of a mile long, half that distance across and some 200 feet deep.

Men dig for iron pyrites 1000 feet below its level and there are 18 miles of galleries containing nearly 3,000 separate chambers.

A descent into these depths is a strange and rather terrifying experience. First the visitor must don heavy black serge overalls and a wide-brimmed black hat. He is given an acetylene torch should something like a kettle.

The visitor makes his way down a path of duckboards. The air grows colder and colder, and at the end of ten minutes he must walk warily in case he slips on the ice. The galleries are terrible places with holes 200 feet deep, into which the visitor might fall if it were not for the red darts burnt by the guides.

An Elastic Clientele

Some time ago there died in Pittsburgh a quaint person who was known as "the nestor of the oil business." It appears that he was a strange and wonderful compound—self-made, uneducated, but a man of great natural force.

Once he had a fight on with a great oil company. A conference was arranged, and the representative of the company had prepared an imposing array of figures showing this gentleman how badly they had beaten him. The statement incensed a paragraph to the effect that the company had 2,700 gas users in a certain town. As a matter of fact, the number was less than 500. The old oil man ran down the list, commenting pithily on the various items. When he came to this particular town he ran his finger along it and said: "Say, if the girl had hit that planer another lick you'd have had 27,000, wouldn't you?"—Kansas City Star.

Still Ahead

Grace H., a stenographer, wished to have her hair bobbed. Now her sweetheart, a physician, age thirty-two, objected because he thought that a woman, age twenty-seven, was too old for bobbed hair.

But off came Grace's hair. And when Doctor Jim arrived that evening there was a long grim silence. Finally she broke it. "Oh, Jim," she exclaimed, "I feel so young with my hair short—quite too young to go with an old man with a mustache. You'll just have to shave yours if you keep going with me."

Now Doctor Jim's eyebrow mustache was one of his prizes. But so conclusive was her argument that now he is going without it and his few friends who are next to the story are complimenting the girl on her rare genius.

Salt From Earth Floors

In a Southern woman's recollections of Civil War times, a novel means of obtaining salt resorted to in those days is described.

"A common practice," she says, "on the part of people who sadly missed salt as an ingredient of their food, was to dig up the earth floors of the smokehouses and by a sort of distilling process get out of the earth the salt that had dripped from the pork and other meats that had been cured in the smokehouses." This made a fair-

Where Hot Air Is Deadly

In Mesopotamia the "poison wind" or "sam" is a whirlwind of superheated air, which literally deals death to those it strikes. It travels almost with the directness and narrow path of a bullet, singling out perhaps a single individual. The person struck by it collapses almost immediately and may die if stimulants are not soon applied. It has the effect of causing heat apoplexy.

Origin of "Blue Blood"

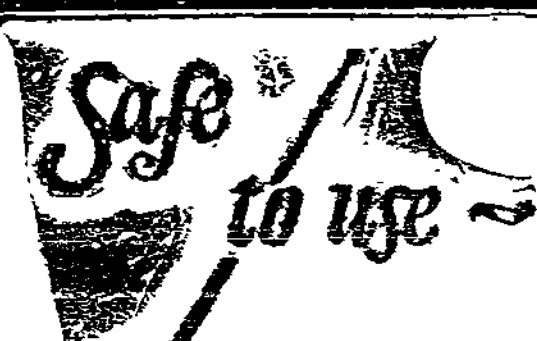

Blue blood is a translation of the Spanish "sangre azul," attributed to some of the oldest and noblest families of Castile, who claimed never to have been contaminated by Moorish, Jewish or other foreign admixture. The expression probably originated in the blueness of the veins of people of fair complexion as compared with those of dark skin.

COUNCILMAN W. C. CLARK.

Charleroi council is to be congratulated on the measure of acumen that it evidenced in the election of W. C. Clark, a substantial local business man and pioneer merchant to a seat in the body, made vacant by the resignation of J. Bryant Tussing in order that the gentleman might accept the portfolio of burgess.

W. C. Clark is a wellknown and a popular gentleman. He is of that temperament and of that force of character that to him, duty is law, and his voice and vote will be found in the channels of conscience's dictation. Mr. Clark is not a politician, only an honorable, conscientious, well-balanced character, deeply imbued with the responsibilities of life. who will, in his official capacity, subserve his duties in the light as he sees them. He will not be swayed by party ties, nor with any affiliation, but rather will cleave to the standard as he understands the right. And having this understanding, he will make a good councilman.

Mr. Clark is of a personality unassuming, and yet one to win the confidence of humanity—and of men. Impregnated with a love for Charleroi and for those things which mean for her progress, Mr. Clark, as a councilman, will cast his vote, give his voice and his influence in manner which will reflect not only to his own, but to borough credit. Conservative, and yet optimistic, his selection and election by the borough council to fill the post made vacant by the elevation of Mr. Tussing to the burgess portfolio, was one of the best possible moves that the body could have made, and meets with the approval of all classes of people; for Mr. Clark is one of the most popular business men and citizens of this growing and prosperous borough.

As attestation of the confidence and the esteem in which his new colleagues hold for him, he was appointed by President Hugh E. Fergus as chairman of the Finance committee, wherein he can display and give the weight of his business experience for the benefit of his constituents.

ABYSSINIA AND LIBERIA.

The honors recently paid in Paris to Ras Tafari, nominal Regent and actual ruler of Abyssinia, has called attention once more to that country, one of the only two independent native States in Africa. The other is Liberia on the West coast, the two representing but 5 per cent of the population of the great continent. It is curiously interesting fact that in both these independent native States slavery is tolerated and flourishes. Some years ago accounts were published showing that slaves from the interior could be purchased in Liberia at $10 a head, and not long since Abyssinia found difficulty in becoming a member of the League of Nations because of slavery within its borders. "Slavery flourishes in Abyssinia," says the New York Times, "despite its formal abolition more than a generation ago. It is estimated that in a population of four to eight million are held for export. Recent investigations have shown that the slave trade in Abyssinia has lost few of its historic cruelties. By seeking entrance into the League of Nations it has presumably consented to the extirpation of the hideous system."

Liberia is a negro State, dominated by descendants of freedom colonized from the United States. The Abyssinians are said to be mostly of the Semitic race, resembling the Arabs both physically and in structure of language. Their royal family claims descent from King Solomon. The only negroes among them are slaves from countries to the West. Abyssinia boasts a railroad of its own, telegraph and telephone lines and a national bank in the capital.

In King Tut's Time.
Folks in King Tut's time were not so slow. Carl Mitman, in cataloging the ship models in his department of the Smithsonian Institution, points out that Egyptians built boat hulls of the correct form for speed nearly 4,000 years before modern scientific designers arrived at the same conclusions. Vikings had the right idea and Malay pirates had the waveline theory of construction down to perfection when English and American sailboats were clumsy tubs.Starboard.
The word starboard is probably derived from steer board, and became identified with the side of the ship to the right of a person at the steer board and facing the bow. The word larboard was used to designate the side to the left. This term has been superseded by the word port, in order to avoid the confusion caused byNorth Charleroi Pupils.
North Charleroi Junior High school pupils who desire to attend Charleroi High school will report at the High school office for enrollment Thursday and Friday, June 5 and 6, from 9 a.m., to 4 p. m. S. W. Sharpnack, secretary.

National Bank Advantages

The advantages of transacting financial affairs with a bank such as The First National Bank, organized under the laws of the United States Government, are many.

Chief among these is the assurance of the highest degree of safety by reason of the rigid restrictions which the law places upon the manner in which loans shall be made, surplus set aside from earnings for the protection of funds and in general the close inspection and supervision which the Government makes of the bank's affairs.

MILLIONS TO BREAK CASE AGAINST ACCUSED BULLETIN.

Chicago, Ill., June 5.—A night session of the Cook County grand jury will be held it necessary to prevent delay in the return of an indictment against Leopold and Richard Loeb, confessed slayers of Robert Franks. It was announced today by Attorney Robert Crowe.

Chicago, June 5.—Indictments will be returned before night, charging Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb with the murder of 14-year-old Robert Franks, Robert Crowe, the state's attorney, predicts.

Only some unforeseen development can forestall the murder indictment.

Thirty-six witnesses have been presented to the grand jury so far, and others will testify beginning at 9 a. m., today. Three stenographers are taking notes of the testimony to check against any possible perjury when the trial opens.

The $15,000,000 defensive machine in an attempt to break down the damaging case against the youthful millionaires.

Clarence Darrow, who heads the defense, outlined two points which will come in for lambasting from the state:

That Leopold signed only stenographic notes of their confession to the murder and 10 transcripts were made.

Prevention of testimony of all who heard the incriminating statements made by the two youths.

In case the confession and the witnesses who heard it are stricken out of the count, Darrow says the state will not have a flick of positive evidence to offer in the murder case. All the evidence to date is circumstantial, he pointed out, as there is no one who saw the murder or saw young Franks with the two confessed slayers.

The state's attorney disclosed a book had been found at Leopold's home with names of intended victims in it. Among the names are S. Deutsch, grandson of Julius Rosenwald, Junior Harris, son of the multi-millionaire S. H. Harris, and John Levinson, son of Solomon Levinson, a prominent attorney.

Young Levinson was approached by the two slayers, but refused to get into the motor car with them.

Loeb became alarmed and went away. He and Leopold went to Loeb's home and obtained a pair of field glasses. Then the two young men sat in their car two blocks from the Harvard school and watched for their intended victims to leave. Fortunately for Deutsch and Harris, they were in company of other boys.

"So the two began cruising about the neighborhood and finally ran across young Franks. The rest of the horrible story the world knows," Crowe said today.

The investigators at the Leopold home also ran into another phase of the peculiar life of the confessed slayers. In a case in the house was a perfect set of surgery tools, many of the instruments which could be used only in dissecting parts of the human body.

In the set were several scalpels, their edges sharpened to a razor like finish. The complete surgery outfit was discovered by detectives last night.

The two millionaire youths were classified "among the worst fiends in history," by the state's attorney today.

This followed upon word that Crowe had received proof of the two boys' complicity in two other fiendish Chicago crimes—the assault upon the taxicab driver, Ream, and the murder of Freeman N. Tracey, former University of Chicago students. Two detectives announce they have positive evidence connecting the youths with the murder of the college student.

Onlooker Dreams of the Origin of Round Cheeses

The damaged brig has for neighbor a bark of humbler degree, a river barge in course of lading with the round cheeses of the country. Tossed from one to another, they pass with mathematical precision through the hands of three stout Dutchmen, before reaching their allotted berth. The onlooker sets about counting them mechanically, till, speculating whose invariably robust appetites they are destined to satisfy, he loses count.

Of the quiet, level meadows, he dreams where these golden discs had their remote origin. From thence his fancy flies to Alpine pastures, where the cattle feed amid the ceaseless music of their bells. And then to a vale amongst the mountains; it is late evening, he is seated in a garden, in the cool darkness. And there comes a faint pen, as of a carillon miles away. Closer and closer it draws; surely a chime of bells. But how brought nearer? Not a footfall can he hear, but still the chime advances. Only when it is all but abreast of where he is seated does he catch the muffled tread of many a hoof upon the road, deep in dust, and know that the kine are pacing homeward, bringing an echo of the mountain's music to the bosom of the plain.—Harry Christopher Minchin, in Talks and

DR. J. W. MERCER PASSES AWAY

Dr. John W. Mercer, aged 71 years who had practiced his profession in several sections of Washington county for the greater part of a half century, died yesterday morning, at 10:10 o'clock, at his home, 362 Jefferson avenue, Washington, after an illness of several months.

Dr. Mercer was a son of Zephaniah Mercer. Studying medicine at Jefferson Medical college, Philadelphia, and the Western Pennsylvania Medical school, now a part of the University of Pittsburgh, Dr. Mercer began to practice at Eldersville, going to Washington from the latter place about ten years ago.

Dr. Mercer was a faithful member of the Central Presbyterian church. Mrs. Mercer survives with one son, J. W. Mercer, at home. He leaves two brothers, E. M. Mercer, residing north of Washington and James Mercer, of Washington, and a half-brother, W. W. Moore, who resides west of Washington.

Funeral services will be held at the Mercer home Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Interment will be in the Washington cemetery.
